north carolina's brunswick islands golf

North Carolina's Golf Coast.
By day, the sound of a great shot.
By night, the sound of the surf.

Golf's rich heritage is so entwined with the seaside, it's said the game's original links courses employed sand dunes in their design. Today, North Carolina's Brunswick Islands epitomizes modern golf with a maritime feel — with more than 30 of the world's finest courses, each of them only minutes from the best-loved family beaches on the entire Eastern seaboard. Every day, another challenge to suit your skill level. Every evening, another stroll with the surf lapping at your bare feet. That's the mystique of the place known as North Carolina's Golf Coast.

A barrier island may not improve your score.
But it's a cinch to improve your outlook.

Our nearly continuous barrier islands do more than offer you a lovely place to stay. They also provide a beautiful way to play. Ours is an all-season golf climate, where the conditions for playing 18 — or even 36 — accommodate you during all four seasons. You can get as choosy as you want to be, selecting your course by yardage, rating, or even type of greens. For the avid player or foursome, most of the courses at North Carolina's Brunswick Islands offer packages. And, with 120 miles of fairways located within county lines, it's easy to schedule a tee time at a course close to where you're staying.

You sign your scorecard.
Golf's greats have signed your course.

You might say all the stars aligned right here. Nowhere else has a 45-mile stretch of barrier islands combined so lavishly with extensive marshes, quiet creeks, the Intracoastal Waterway and windswept trees rooted to an ancient sea floor to produce a terrain so attuned to the golf imagination. The game's legends responded to the challenge. Palmer, Byrd, Maples, Jones, Cate, Couples — they came, they saw, they designed hole after stunningly beautiful hole, with thoughtfully placed bunkers guarding the solace of bearded oak-shaded greens. All of which makes choosing your course rather more difficult than choosing your club.

The hand that wields the club can also hold a paddle or rod.

Even when you're not playing golf, that doesn't mean you have to stop playing, period. The world behind the beaches is a network of creeks, inlets and waterways teeming with wildlife from waterfowl to dolphins. Bring your own boat, kayak or canoe, or book through one of our local outfitters. For a more adrenalin-charged day, book a fishing charter and try your luck offshore, depending on the season, with the king mackerel, cobia, grouper and bluefish. For a more casual approach, just take your rod out to the beach or wander down to one of our fishing piers. No matter where you play, or what you play, we'll send you home with stories!

Life is about more than a tin cup.
We also attend to your plate and glass.

Even with a cart, you're going to work up an appetite playing here. There are simply too many holes not to. Luckily, North Carolina's Brunswick Islands were a great seafood destination even before we were a great golf destination. The many Calabash-style restaurants carry on a seafood tradition that goes back to the 1930s. But the combination of superior golf and unique beaches has attracted a spectrum of cuisines, from American classics to international. And when it's time to celebrate your best shot of the day, you'll discover every kind of venue from sports bars to fantastic places to hoist a glass and watch the sunset.

No matter how far you've traveled, we'll make you feel at home.

Genuine. That's the word that best describes both the people and the lifestyle at North Carolina's Brunswick Islands. This is a family place that loves back those who love it. Whatever your taste or preference in accommodations, and whatever your budget, we make you feel welcome. From a fairway-hugging villa to an intimate cottage or a spacious beach vacation home for your entire group — all things are possible here. If you have special wants or needs, such as proximity to shopping or island seclusion, we'll cheerfully handle them.

Pack up your golf bag. We've got more for your foursome.
